- you are engaged in a hazardous occupation as defined in the relevant product disclosure statement (PDS), or

You can increase your existing Income Protection cover if you have had a recent salary increase.

- your application is not received by us within 60 days of the salary increase
- you are engaged in a hazardous occupation (as defined in the PDS), or

Life Events and salary increase

The maximum increase of Death or Death and TPD cover due to a Life Event is the lesser of:

- $200,000
- the total amount of your mortgage, or the amount of increase in your mortgage (if applicable), or
- 25 per cent of your existing cover.

The maximum increase of Income Protection cover due to Life Events or salary increase is the lesser of:

- 25 per cent of your existing cover, or
- $2,500 per month

Type of cover	Existing cover in your account	Amount of increase	Total cover after increase*
Death	$	$	$
TPD	$	$	$
Income protection (inc super benefit)	$ pa	$ pa	$ pa

New/current salary $ pa Insured percentage of salary after increase %

* Maximum amount of total cover after increase.

After the increase of cover due to Life Events or salary increase, the amount of total cover cannot exceed:

- $3,000,000 for Death or Death and TPD cover
- For Income Protection cover, the lesser of:
 - $25,000 per month, or
 - 75% of salary (plus up to 10% of salary for a Superannuation Contribution Benefit, if elected).

Net income means gross income from personal exertion less all expenses incurred by you in connection with earning that income but does not include investment income, profit distributions or similar payments.

Note: For the avoidance of doubt, salary does not include employer superannuation contributions that are required to be made to meet your employer's superannuation guarantee obligations, award or industrial agreement obligations or additional voluntary contributions. Step 7: Duty of disclosure

Before you enter into a life insurance contract, you have a duty to tell the insurer anything that you know, or could reasonably be expected to know, may affect their decision to insure you and on what terms.

You have this duty until the insurer agrees to insure you.

You have the same duty before you extend, vary or reinstate the contract.

You do not need to tell the insurer anything that:

- reduces the risk they insure you for
- is common knowledge
- they know or should know as an insurer
- they have waived your duty to tell them about.

If you do not tell the insurer something

In exercising the following rights, the insurer may consider whether different types of cover can constitute separate contracts of life insurance. If they do, they may apply the following rights separately to each type of cover.

If you do not tell the insurer anything you are required to, and they would not have insured you if you had told them, they may void the contract within three years of entering into it.

If the insurer chooses not to void the contract, they may, at any time, reduce the amount you have been insured for. This would be worked out using a formula that takes into account the premium that would have been payable if you had told them everything you should have. However, if the contract has a surrender value, or provides cover on death, the insurer may only exercise this right within three years of entering into the contract.

If the insurer chooses not to void the contract or reduce the amount you have been insured for, they may, at any time vary the contract in a way that places them in the same position they would have been in if you had told them everything you should have. However, this right does not apply if the contract has a surrender value or provides cover on death.

If your failure to tell the insurer is fraudulent, they may refuse to pay a claim and treat the contract as if it never existed.

Step 8: Privacy
